Inducements to Overland Travelers.—Mr. F. S. [illegible], who has just arrived overland from the States by the Pacific railroad, says the following extracts from the Bear River Reveille of April 19th concerning the dangerous condition of a portion of the Union Pacific Railroad, are strictly true. The article is headed: "Murder by Rail—How the Union Pacific Railroad is built—Improved facilities for human slaughter—The Government robbed and [illegible] agers murdered." It says:

A gentleman resident of this city who returned from the Atlantic overland on Saturday morning represents a part of the Union Pacific Railroad, in its construction and management, as infamous. Such a condition of things could not exist for one hour outside of the United States—the land of the free and the home of the brave. The road from Omaha to Cheyenne is well constructed and in excellent condition. From the latter point to [illegible] it is alternately good, indifferent and wretched, but from Wasatch to the western terminus it is a [illegible]—or as a passenger expressed it, the shortest way to hell. It is a man-trap, in which the traveler is exposed to as great danger as he would be if compelled to run the gauntlet over a road beset by savage [illegible]. Our informant told us that he could not be induced to repeat his trip over that part of the Union Pacific railroad for $20,000, and this is putting it strongly by a native of the country where the dollar is "almighty." Between Cheyenne and Wasatch every mile [illegible] has been [illegible]; there are bridges long, oscillating, rickety affairs, which were condemned by the engineers. The one which spans Green river, which is of great length, is [illegible] to be unsafe by the conductors and others in the employ of the company, and a fireman [illegible] our traveler that the train never attempted to cross that bridge but he felt that he was rushing into eternity. While crossing Bitter creek the miserable bridge gave way, and the train was precipitated to the bed of the stream, presenting a fearful scene of destruction. One poor fellow named Palmer, who was on his way from [illegible] to Salt Lake City, was mangled out of existence. The railroad people could hardly be persuaded to recover his body, but they did so at last, and sent it back to Bryan. The unsafe condition of this bridge was so well known to the engineer and conductor of the train that they got off before the attempt to cross it was made. Our informant followed the example, and there is no doubt saved his life by the precaution.

First Railroad Meeting in Portland.—We find in the old files of the Oregonian the following account of the first railroad meeting held at Portland, April 27, 1851:

At a meeting of the citizens called to take into [illegible] the project of a railroad from this city to the State line, a company having been organized for that purpose, under a charter granted by the late [illegible] of Oregon, the Mayor, Wm. S. Ladd, was called to the Chair, and R. N. McLaren was [illegible] ... of Polk county and Hon. Ben Stark spoke at length of the advantages that would result to the city and the whole Territory from the projected road. [illegible] to March 27th, at half past 7 o'clock P. M., in order to give opportunity for the citizens to examine the [illegible] in the hands of Maj. Thorp.

W. S. LADD Chairman.
R. N. McLaren, Secretary.

April 27th, 7½ o'clock P. M.

At an adjourned meeting, W. S. Ladd in the Chair, A. B. Hallock was appointed Secretary pro tem.

B. Stark read the charter for organizing the Willamette R. R. Co. Speeches were listened to from Messrs. Thorp, Dryer and Stark. Moved that a committee of three be appointed by the meeting to solicit subscriptions to the stock of the company, within the city limits. [illegible] Stark, Fitch and Ladd [illegible] I also do.

W. S. LADD Chairman.
R. N. McLaren, Secretary.

Religious Intelligence.—We learn from the Advocate that camp-meetings will be held at the following times and places: East Tualatin circuit, on the ground at [illegible], commencing Thursday, June 10th and [illegible] over the second Sabbath in the month. Powell [illegible], beginning Thursday, July 22d, on the fourth Sabbath of the month. Rock Creek [illegible] on the 20th of June. Lafayette circuit [illegible] on the 27th of June, one-half mile west [illegible] Yamhill Indian Reservation, commencing [illegible]. The exercises of the 4th quarterly meeting for Portland charge, will commence to-day with [illegible] o'clock P. M. by the presiding elder. [illegible] Convention will be held in Salem some [illegible] month. It is designed for Marion county. [illegible] that an arrangement will be made by the Young Men's Christian Association for regular street [illegible] by the several pastors of this city in turn. [illegible] of the Presbyterian Church, has been [illegible] to fill the pulpit engagements [illegible]. We are glad to hear that [illegible] in health, and will resume his duties. [illegible] Four Protestant congregations worship at [illegible], Congregational, Baptist, Episcopalian and [illegible], and there is also a Roman Catholic church and [illegible]. The Sabbath schools connected with these [illegible] are full and flourishing.

From The Dalles.—The Mountaineer has the following items: The Woolen Mill is in splendid running order and every [illegible] manned with a full force of operatives. [illegible] on the river has been quite lively during the past [illegible]. Strawberries have been introduced in the [illegible] during the past week. The public school of this city is in a flourishing condition. The warm [illegible] we have been having for some days past has had the effect to raise the river very rapidly. Our [illegible] a large number of dogs have been [illegible] by some unknown persons. ....Services in connection with the Quarterly Meeting, will begin at the M. E. Church in this city, on next Saturday afternoon. [illegible] by Mr. Wm. N. Denham on Wednesday last, with an Indian mortar, which was found in a [illegible] claim on Canyon creek, Grant county, some seven [illegible] feet below the surface.....A gentleman from Klickitat Valley [illegible] us that the crickets are becoming very [illegible] in that section, and fears are entertained that they will entirely destroy the crops this season. [illegible] for the past week has been very warm, the [illegible] having gone up to 92° on Tuesday and 90° [illegible]. Thursday was cool and cloudy with the [illegible] of rain. At Wallula the mercury ran up to 100° on [illegible].

[illegible] Fourth.—The following call for a [illegible] to make preparations for a celebration of the 4th [illegible], was circulated yesterday and about one hundred and fifty names were attached:

"We, the undersigned, would respectfully call a meeting of the citizens of the City of Portland on Monday evening, May 17, 1869, at the Council Chamber, for the purpose of appointing committees to collect money and to make [illegible] for the celebration of the coming Fourth of July."

[illegible] attached are those of some of our leading [illegible] and professional men. It is desirable that all [illegible], all those whose names are appended to the call [illegible] the meeting, and if twice or thrice as many [illegible] join in this movement all the better. Let us have a grand, united, liberal action.

From Oregon City.—The Enterprise says: The body of an unknown man, considerably decomposed, was found above this city in the Wallamet, some days ago, by Mr. John Evans. We have not yet heard the particulars as brought to light by an investigation of a coroner's jury. [illegible] term of the Circuit Court for Clackamas county, Judge W. W. Upton presiding, was held in this city this week, beginning on Monday last. The several suits for right of way for the Wallamet Falls Canal & Lock [illegible], they were tried and disposed of, excepting [illegible], which was continued in pursuance of stipulation of the parties. Captain George A. Pease laid his [illegible] at $12,500 and obtained $200 judgement. The whole right was obtained from the old basin on the west side, to the lower terminus for $250.

Prof. Carpenter's Ball.—The ball given by Prof. Carpenter at the Washington Guard's Armory, Thursday [illegible], was well attended, notwithstanding the unfavorable condition of the weather, and the guests enjoyed [illegible] pleasant evening. The pupils in the course of the evening, to the number of about forty, danced together three or four fancy quadrilles taught them by Mr. [illegible], which were greatly admired for the beauty and [illegible] of the changes and the precision with which they were executed. The Russian waltz, danced by a class of "little folks," was particularly well done, and was received with such applause as induced its repetition. The [illegible] seems to have been particularly successful in his [illegible], and we were pleased to hear this acknowledgement of his merit as an instructor in the saltatory art.

[illegible].—Mr. James Elkins of Albany called on us last evening. He came down on business connected with the [illegible] road across the Cascade mountains known as the [illegible] road. He yesterday [illegible] to the land office selections of 15,000 acres of land for the road company, under the subsidy act of Congress. These lands lie all within six miles of the road. The company is entitled to 60,000 acres. Mr. Elkins informs us that the road is now open for stock all the way through to Canyon City, and will be ready for wagons by the 1st of June.

From Forest Grove.—A gentleman from Forest Grove [illegible] us that Prof. L. J. Powell, late of the Faculty of the [illegible] Grove College, has recently commenced teaching in the district school, which has, in consequence of his [illegible] as an educator, an unusually full attendance. The crop prospects in that section of the country are [illegible] promising. It is estimated that the yield of grain will aggregate more than thirty three per cent [illegible] than ever before.

Postponed.—We are requested to state that the picnic of the Unitarian Sabbath school has been postponed in consequence of the unfavorable weather to Saturday the 22d inst.

The Commercial is authority for saying that the Episcopal Sabbath school picnic has been postponed also to the same day.

Reopening Night.—Oro Fino Theater will be [illegible]ed to-night for the summer season, by Mr. F. M. Bates and his select comedy company, with the [illegible] "To Parents and Guardians," at Jubilee [illegible], and the farce of "The Loan of a Lover," both [illegible] cast to the full strength of the company. The bill is a fine one and should draw a full house.

[illegible] Receives [illegible].—Mr. Thomas G. Young has received his commission as U. S. Marshal for the District of Oregon. He will probably assume the duties of the office during the next week.

What Happened him.—Thomas Parker, who was arrested here the other day and sent back to the Dalles, was [illegible] upon a charge of stealing from a settler on Fifteen Mile Creek. So says the Mountaineer.

A Large Ox.—An ox is on exhibition at the Dalles which is seven years old, stands five feet eleven inches high, and [illegible] nine feet around the girth. He was raised by Mr. Frederick [illegible] of Umatilla county.

Fire Engine for [illegible].—The Unionist learns by letter from San Francisco that Capt. Scott, who went below by last steamer, has purchased Fire Engine No. 14 of San Francisco, for $1,400.

Steamboat Accident.—Capt. J. N. Fisher, of the [illegible] informs us that when he came up the river yesterday the Ranger was lying disabled at St. Helens, having blown out her throttle valve. [illegible]

[illegible].—The steamship Continental, Metzger Commander, will sail for San Francisco [illegible] this evening.

The brig Rebel [illegible] will sail [illegible] Monday next.

Strawberries.—There are small shipments of these delicious [illegible] in the market [illegible] dollars [illegible].

Rising.—The Wallamet is getting pretty well up, the water being [illegible] the June rise.

Political.

Indications are that General Geary will be nominated for re-election as Governor of Pennsylvania.

Colonel Joseph Segar has announced himself as a candidate for Congressman at large from Virginia. He advises the people to proceed cheerfully to the work of reconstruction under the laws of Congress.

Ex-Governor Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia, has published a card denying that he is an applicant for the position of Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States. He says he does not desire the position and would not accept it.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes: There is a belief gaining circulation that there is a significance in the sudden appearance of Senator Sprague in his new field other than what exists in his own volition. This is that it is a new Chase movement, with the Chief Justice in the background prompting the positions.

The recent State Temperance Convention at Crestline, Ohio, resolved to go actively into political affairs and to hold a convention in Columbus next Fall to nominate candidates for State officers. The radical temperance men of Maine are looking in the same direction, and will probably hold a State Convention in Portland prior to the political Conventions. A National Convention is also to be called soon.

The Cleveland Leader complains that Ohio has not received a single first class foreign appointment, though it is the third State in the Union in population and size, and it thinks that Secretary Fish looks at the matter too much from the New York point of view. Ohio has received the Secretary of the Interior, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Secretary of Washington Territory, two Governors, two Ministers Resident and six Consuls.

C. C. Crowe, of Alabama, who has been appointed and confirmed as Governor of New Mexico, has worked hard for the success of reconstruction, and in doing so incurred the bitter hatred of his former friends. During last summer, while he was canvassing Alabama as Presidential elector at large, his family were denied the privilege of purchasing provisions and medicines in the town where they resided, and only purchased necessaries of life by the intervention of neighbors.

Both parties in Virginia are Republican. The support of the Conservative element is given to the Walker Republicans as against the Wells party. The Conservatives argue that the election of their nominees, however good, would be urged as an argument against the readmission of their State at the next session of Congress, and they have wisely come to the conclusion that the first need of Virginia at present is the restoration of her relations with the General Government.

New Projects for an Isthmus Interoceanic Ship Canal.

[From N. Y. Times.]

The Cushing Canal Treaty is certainly put off and probably will come to naught. The Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs of the United States of Colombia reported against its ratification long ago, and now the Senate of the United States of America, after elaborate and protracted discussion of every part and parcel of it, with speeches in its favor by such gentlemen as Messrs. Sumner and Stewart, and speeches against it by such gentlemen as Messrs. Sherman, Fessenden, Wilson and Warner, has postponed the whole subject until the next session. The arguments pro are easily imagined; the main argument con is understood to be that the treaty binds our Government to construct the canal, and yet in return gives nothing but a mere right of way.

It appears, therefore, that the one high contracting party rejects the Convention because it gives too much and brings too little to Colombia, and the other high contracting party demurs to it because it brings too little and gives too much to America. Under these circumstances it would seem that the whole affair will have to begin de novo, and with a clearer understanding of how both Governments really stand related to the stupendous enterprise.

We may presume that it is in recognition of this probable upshot of existing negotiations that Mr. Wilson has introduced into the Senate a new proposition. Before the Cushing Convention was acted on, that gentleman gave notice that he would offer a joint resolution authorizing the President to appoint a commission to examine into both the practicability and the best means of establishing the canal across the Isthmus. On consultation, the resolution was somewhat modified in form, though not in substance, and it has now been submitted as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be and he is hereby authorized, with the consent of the Government of Colombia, to cause a thorough survey to be made for a ship railway or a ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien, from San Miguel to the Gulf of Uraba, in Darien.

In this last shape of the Darien project we note three or four important points—first, that the alternate of a ship railway is taken into consideration, as hypothetical means of interoceanic communication; second, that a certain fixed route is proposed for experiment, being selected from the dozen different paths pointed out by engineers and explorers, English and American; third, that the survey for which, as we have already explained in the Times, an unexpended appropriation now lies ready —having been made by Congress, chiefly through the exertions of Senator Conness, long ago— is now proposed (Colombia consenting) to begin; fourth, that the Navy Department is denoted as the one into whose province the preliminary steps of the gigantic undertaking falls.

Taking the last point first, it is to be observed that our naval officers have already taken much interest in this project, and contributed some valuable materials to its facts and its literature. The excellent report of Rear Admiral C. H. Davis is well known, furnishes a map and profile of the San Blas route, (in which, starting from the Pacific side, the proposed line is almost due north) and estimates the total canal length from the mouth of the Bayano to the Gulf of San Blas a little above thirty miles. The recent letter of Lieutenant Commander Selfridge to Vice Admiral Porter, in which he expresses a strong desire to conduct a survey across the Cordilleras for the Government, adds direct and clear testimony to the ease of access and convenience and spaciousness of the harbors to be found on both shores of the Isthmus at or about the point where the canal must be constructed. If the canal, therefore, is to be surveyed by Government, the Navy Department will best superintend the undertaking.

It seems to us that Mr. Wilson's proposition, or some modification of it, might well be taken up, since three years ago an appropriation of $40,000 was made by Congress for the same purpose, except that, if we remember right, instead of the single route now to be examined, the proposal was to investigate the [illegible] generally settled upon as most practicable and desirable, namely, that from the Gulf of San Miguel to Caledonia Bay, and that from the Bayano river to the Gulf of San Blas. But while the San Blas route has been accurately surveyed and mapped by private enterprise, the other, or San Miguel route, has never yet been surveyed with instruments, though good observers have reported sufficiently [illegible] to show that any money appropriated for its survey by Government would not be thrown away.

It will be suggested that if our Government goes to work at surveying a route before a treaty is completed with the Government at Bogota, it may be tricked out of its desired bargain by a higher bidder, and have only its labor for its pains. But this is a small objection. It is more important, on the other hand, to be first assured not only that the canal is practicable, but of what it will probably cost, before making binding contracts to build, with provisions for paying fixed percentages to the Colombian Government. And while private surveys may be trustworthy, yet inasmuch as Government is to be responsible for constructing the canal, though it may farm out the contract, it is wise to have the estimates of Government engineers and officers. On the other hand, whatever Colombia intends, our countrymen do not propose that the grand conduit of the world's commerce shall be built and controlled by any power, against the interests of the United States.

Virginia Politics.—Reported Views of the President.—We have the most gratifying assurances from Washington that General Grant will give us a fair election and afford every opportunity for making the test that can be made of the Underwood abomination. He is in favor of real peace and of whatever will best promote the true interests of the Commonwealth. All the tricks and devices of those artful dodgers Wells and [illegible] will be thrown away upon him. They are now in Washington spending the money [illegible]. General Grant [illegible] General [illegible] has perfect confidence [illegible] will settle the matter to the satisfaction of the people of Virginia, and the Walker [illegible] will be elected by at least one [illegible] thousand majority. We are every day [illegible] more [illegible] that Wells will not [illegible].

Whatever politicians in Washington and New York [illegible] in his whole [illegible] of Virginia [illegible] General Grant has acted the part of a true man, of a high [illegible] of one who knew [illegible]. At his first interview with the committee of nine he declared that the Underwood constitution was an abomination; that [illegible] clauses [illegible] should be stricken out [illegible] by the people, and he has [illegible] of changing [illegible] on the subject from that day to this. He still thinks the objectionable clauses should be stricken out. He is [illegible] that they shall be stricken out, and that the thing [illegible] Underwood Constitution shall be amended and improved as much as it is capable of being improved. We speak that whereof we know.—Richmond Whig.

It also can by it be made considerably thinner and lighter, whereas the price is but little above that for common Plates. Call and see specimens.

Groundless Accusations

The New York Times in an earnest and convincing article shows the falsity of the numerous statements which have been made that President Grant has been accepting gifts of all sorts, and that he has shown partiality for his relatives in making appointments to office. It points to the fact that no one has ventured to specify any gift to the amount of one dollar, that he has accepted, since he became President, and that the general allegation about his receiving presents has no foundation at all. Whatever presents have been made to General Grant, were made to him as a military man and out of gratitude for his military services,—before he became President or was even put in nomination for that office. They were the result of the spontaneous and impulsive feeling of the country that services which he had rendered ought not to pass unnoticed, or be rewarded only by his salary as an army officer, or by the empty votes of thanks from Congress and State Legislatures. All classes of our people felt the transcendent value of what he had done for the country in suppressing the rebellion, and all were eager to do whatever might be in their power to testify their estimate of that service and to reward him for having rendered it. In no case has it been asserted that any gift made to Gen Grant before he became President has been rewarded by public office since he took the Presidential chair, though groundless insinuations to this effect have often been made.

The other charge that he has appointed great numbers of his relatives to office is equally without foundation. The hue and cry which has been raised on this subject the Times pronounces absurdly extravagant. Gen. Grant has not made such appointments to any unusual or culpable extent. The fact is that not half a dozen of his relatives have been appointed by him to any place of emolument since he came into office. It is true, as the Times [illegible], that several family connections have been placed in confidential positions, for which it has always been usual to select the most intimate friends and the closest relations, but beyond this, General Grant has been, to say the least, quite as abstemious as any of his predecessors. The idea that a man in high office must regard with special [illegible], and treat with special neglect, any man in any way related to him, or to any branch of his family, is not only absurd in itself, but is never treated otherwise, except by those who have some special object to serve, or some special grief to revenge, by insisting upon such a rule of conduct.

British Pacific Squadron

The following list of vessels constituting the British Pacific Squadron is from the British Navy List of April, 1869. It is published quarterly, by authority of the Admiralty. It [illegible] the names of all the commissioned officers of the Navy and Royal Marines, the vessels in commission, and the stations in which they are serving. The following are the vessels [illegible] as comprising the British Pacific squadron:

Hon. George F. Hastings, C B, Rear Admiral commanding.

Flagship Zealous, 20 guns, screw ship, armor plated, 3,716 tons, 800-horse power, Captain Richard Dawkins.

Topaze, 51 guns, screw frigate, 2,659 tons, 600-horse power; Captain Richard A. Powell (O[illegible] of the second class) Ordered home.

S[illegible], [illegible] guns, screw corvette, 1,462 tons, 400 horse power; Captain John A. P Price. Ordered home.

Satellite, 17 guns, screw corvette, 1,462 tons, 400-horse power, Captain W. H. Edye.

Charybdis, 17 guns, screw corvette, 1,506 tons, 400-horse power; Captain Algernon McL Lyons.

Chameleon, 17 guns, screw sloop-of war, 952 tons, 200 horse power, Commander William H A[illegible].

Chanticleer, 17 guns, screw sloop-of war, 950 tons, 200 horse power; Commander William W. B[illegible].

Mal[illegible], 13 guns, screw corvette, 1,035 tons 200-horse power, Captain Radulphus B Oldfield. Ordered home.

Re[illegible], 7 guns, screw sloop of war, 923 tons 200-horse power, Commander Edward Nares.

Sparrowhawk, 4 guns, screw gun vessel, 474 tons, 200-horse power; Commander Henry W Mist.

[illegible], 2 guns, double screw composite gun vessel, 465 tons, 120 horse power, Lieutenant and Commander Frederick W. Egerton.

Forward, 1 gun, screw gunboat, 272 tons, 60 horse power; Lieutenant and Commander Thomas H. Lee.

Nereus, 6 guns, sailing vessel, 1,094 tons, Staff Commander John F Dillon. Storeship, Valparaiso.

Annexation.

A short time ago a committee of the Nova Scotia [illegible] addressed a letter to Robert J. Walker, in which the following questions were propounded:

1st, "What is the feeling in the United States on the subject of admitting Nova Scotia as a State of the Union?"

2d, "On what terms, as regards Nova Scotia, could such a union be accomplished?"

3d. "What would be the probable effect of [illegible] on the welfare of Nova Scotia?"

These queries Mr. Walker answers at great length. His letter is published in full in the Washington Chronicle of April 23d, filling twelve columns. He is as deeply impressed as Mr. Seward with the idea of expanding our national domain, and declares that the annexation of Nova Scotia to the United States would be hailed by most, if not by all, our people "with the most intense satisfaction." This is putting it very strong, but then these enthusiastic gentlemen, who make a hobby of annexation never descend to commonplace terms. They deal wholly in superlatives. Mr. Walker thinks, of course that the annexation of Nova Scotia to the United States would be advantageous to both countries. We would pay their debts, improve their rivers and harbors, erect their public buildings and develop their agricultural and mineral resources. In return we would get their products, which he considers would be of the greatest value to the United States. His argument is virtually an argument for the acquisition of all British North America. Every new State in his opinion, an additional bond of union, and he argues that when the United States expand so as to embrace the whole continent, our Government will stand much more firmly than now.

Occasionally we hear a complaint from the writer of an article sent us for publication, that his production has not appeared. We are always glad to receive anything for publication which will interest the reading community. Any information regarding the industrial progress of the country, notable events in neighborhoods, &c are always welcome. But we sometimes receive communications which, if printed would do no credit to their writers. We cannot adopt the idea of the editor "out West" who always considered it wrong to reject anything that had been written for his paper. He looked on the writing as so much labor performed which it was wasteful to throw away. He sometimes got queer things in his paper but then he wasted nothing.

In General

The Republican papers [illegible] retaliation in kind for the [illegible] committed by the Ku-klux in that State. They think this the best way to intimidate the rebels and secure peace.

The Herald has ruled [illegible] the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments to the Constitution [illegible] on the people. We suppose [illegible] that paper will [illegible] emancipation proclamation.

It is reported by a Maine paper that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has secured sufficient funds to construct two hundred miles of road and that it will immediately begin operations at the Western or Pacific terminus. Doubtful.

The recent brief letter of information to immigrants written by a missionary in Wales is to be translated into every European language. It will find its way into every part of the old country and be studied [illegible] point, in many a rude hamlet by its peasant population.

It is very certain that the movements of the little Rhode Island Senator Sprague are part of a programme to bring out his father in law Chief Justice Chase, as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency in 1872. Even Vallandigham now expresses his regrets that Chase was not nominated last year.

The blessed "nigger" the gentleman from Africa, who has been sole stock in trade with Democratic politicians for years is about to be lifted out of our politics and be placed where he can no longer be worried over. And yet, strange as it may seem there are few persons who are alarmed lest their daughters may marry "niggers."

Most of the Democratic papers still continue to argue with all earnestness that during all the time the late rebel States were fighting the National Government and trying to destroy it, they retained their rights as States forming component parts of that government. This is harmless amusement but isn't it getting a little stale?

In the proceedings of the Linn County Teachers' Institute published in our columns to-day, there is a sweeping accusation against the Roman Catholics which we think might as well have been omitted. We dislike to publish anything of a sectarian character, and do so in this case only because it cannot well be separated from the other proceedings.

The Commercial don't believe the suffrage amendment will be ratified by the required number of States. Such was the Democratic opinion in regard to the thirteenth and fourteenth amendments. The fate that is in store for unbelievers will certainly overtake the Commercial. The person who don't know by this time that the negro is going to vote in every State of the Union has fallen far behind the progress of events. We are not living among the ideas of ten years ago.

Austrian writers are catching from their French neighbors the trick of introducing political allusions in the most unheard-of places. The novels and plays now issuing from the Vienna presses fairly bristle with these dark hints. Reference to the relations between Austria and Prussia is appreciated and applauded in a dialogue between Hannibal and Scipio in a tragedy lately produced, and in a novel by Alfred Meissner entitled, The Tower of Babel the writer insinuates the gloomiest sort of description of the condition of Austria and the constitutional changes made since 1859.

A cotemporary journal reviews that portion of the report of the Senate Committee on the Pacific Railroads, which bases its recommendation for the grant of Government subsidies, upon the example of England in its Indian enterprise. The argument is a good one, and there is no doubt that our Government, even in its crippled financial condition could profitably act upon it. The great trouble here is, as the Oakland News observes that these Government subsidies have not been honestly appropriated. The Government has already furnished the means sufficient to build two Pacific lines and they have all been absorbed by one. If it can by any means keep its subsidies out of the hands of thieves, and see them faithfully and judiciously appropriated to the object they were intended to secure, it should not hesitate to give the requisite aid to construct two additional lines as early as possible.

WARLIKE RUMORS.—The cable report that Great Britain, France and Spain are forming an alliance, offensive and defensive against the United States, need not startle anybody for the report is probably a sensational one. The charges alleged against the United States as a base of this assumed alliance are altogether imaginary. President Grant's Administration, instead of being warlike is eminently pacific. There have yet been no aggressions on any foreign power and the rights of other nations have been scrupulously regarded. The Administration has no designs on Cuba. The President is carefully enforcing the neutrality laws and the authorities at all the Atlantic and Gulf ports have instructions to stop all vessels which may be suspected of a design to furnish aid to the Cuban insurgents. In this regard Spain has nothing to complain of. As for Great Britain, if she wishes to find in the rejection of the Alabama treaty a pretext for war, the American people stand ready to accommodate her on that ground. But Great Britain is quite as far as the United States from desiring war. She is not ready to take leave of her vast possessions on this continent.

JOHN BULL FINALLY.—On the arrival of Mr Motley in England the following scene may be supposed to occur:

John Bull in a cordial glow from the use of cordials advances and shakes Mr Motley by the hand until his hand aches.

"Pray accept this copy of Shakespeare," says John, "we have you know a common language."

"Excuse me," Mr Motley replies "we may have to shake a Spear in quite a different way. As to a common language your language lately has been very uncommon, quite unintelligible indeed, to American minds."

"Do let me present you with this copy of Milton," urges John. "You'll then value the Paradise Lost."

"The Paradise Lost," answers Mr Motley "is not the Lost Cause, but exactly the reverse. When the latter is regained its adherents will find it in a very tropical region indeed."

"Now come," pleads John soothingly "I am sure you will join me in a dinner over turtle and white bait."

"I am not to be baited in that way," Mr Motley rejoins, "when you acknowledge the wrong and pay the damages of your marauding on our commerce, then the voice of the turtle will be heard in the land."

Exit John Bull with one hand on his forehead and the other in his pocket book having just had a glimmering perception that the one language one creed, one [illegible] diplomacy will forget pay but that pounds shillings and pence will.—Washington Star.

A Boston paper suggests that the election of Hon. Henry L. Dawes as Governor of Massachusetts, would continue the alphabetical arrangement already commenced: as Andrew, Bullock, Claflin, Dawes.

Commencement at Pacific University

FOREST GROVE, May 10 1869

[illegible]:

The commencement passed off very pleasantly. On Monday evening the Alpha Zeta Alpha Society held their anniversary exercises. Rev J. H. Wythe M D gave us a practical and earnest exposition of the "demand of the present age upon educated men." This was followed by a poem by Prof J. W. Marsh. It was a description of college life and words of encouragement [illegible]. It was full of [illegible]. Tuesday evening the exercises of the Association of Alumni seemed destined to be a failure, as the [illegible] was not present but Dr Wythe was found to be provided with an alternative address, an excellent one it proved [illegible]. [illegible] of these lectures by Dr W. we should be glad to see [illegible]. On Wednesday at eleven o'clock the regular commencement exercises came off. [illegible] Messrs [illegible] and H [illegible] acquitted themselves well. The subject of the former was [illegible], that of the latter "The American Citizen." Miss Hattie [illegible] completed the three years' ladies course. Upon the gentlemen the degree of A B was conferred, upon Miss H [illegible] that of M[illegible]. The degree of A M was conferred upon Messrs [illegible] Durham and [illegible] Watson in course and as an honor upon Rev D. B. Gray of Astoria and Findley Watson [illegible] of Roseburg.

After these exercises R. F. C Anderson of Portland by invitation of the Faculty gave a most [illegible] and interesting address upon the "Man best suited to our times." It should be published. The reunion in the evening was a very pleasant occasion.

The number of students in attendance in the different departments during the year has been large, in the college and preparatory larger than ever before while at the same time the standard of scholarship has been so raised that at least a dozen, who two years ago would have been in the higher departments were excluded. Because of this raising of the grade the number of college students has been apparently diminished.

WHEREAS, The arts of spelling and [illegible] according to our present system (if system it can be called) of representing is and long has been acknowledged to be exceedingly difficult and laborious, consuming much valuable time and never acquired so that either the correct spelling or pronunciation of an unmemorized word can be known with certainty.

Resolved, That we earnestly recommend all persons and especially teachers, to procure phonetic books, and familiarize themselves (which can be easily done) with the only true natural and beautiful system of representing spoken language so as to introduce the system as practicable into general use, and thus make reading an easy and speedy acquisition and pleasant recreation, and accomplish the task of learning to read our common print in one-half the time now required and at the same time laying the true foundation of education.

AND WHEREAS, Writing as at present generally practiced is [illegible] and laborious unworthy of this age of improvement and progress.

Resolved, Phonetic short hand commonly called phonography should be acquired by every teacher not already initiated in the art, that the rising race, especially the rising generation may write with almost breathing ease and with the rapidity of thought or speech and be capable of truly and unmistakably representing the sounds of speech.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the views of our County School Superintendent that certificates for teaching should not be granted to persons of intemperate habits.

WHEREAS, It is a matter of fact in history that the Papists do not educate the masses of the people in the countries, but oppose enlightened free government and civil and religious liberty.

Resolved, That the practice of Protestants in patronizing the schools of Catholics has a tendency detrimental to the interests of an enlightened people injurious to our social and educational interests and dangerous to our civil and religious liberties. And

WHEREAS, The Holy Scriptures are the great charter of our liberties as there is no security for liberty without virtue and no virtue in its highest sense at least without religion and no true religion without the Bible, and

WHEREAS, The word of God is the only source whence we can derive knowledge of the way of happiness therefore

Resolved, That the Bible should be read in all schools. And

WHEREAS, Teachers Institutes when made what they should be and can be made if liberally encouraged and punctually attended are well calculated to raise the standard of education promote the interests of teachers, pupils and patrons, and thus advance the cause of education in general and promote acquaintance and good feeling among teachers and also the people of the several localities where held and prove beneficial in many respects; therefore

Resolved, That it is the duty and would be for the advantage of teachers to take a greater interest in our Institutes be more punctual in attendance and show more readiness in taking part in the proceedings.

During the early part of the late extra session of Congress the Senate passed a resolution to print a manuscript private journal of the proceedings of the United States Constitutional Convention, when it transpired that the manuscript had been submitted to the President of the Philadelphia Historical Society and rejected on account of the gross and indecent language appearing therein.

The heretofore strongly Democratic city of Quincy Illinois elected a Republican Mayor on the 26th April by 300 majority.

FROM THE NORTH

MONTICELLO, May 14.—The body of David H[illegible] who it is supposed, fell out of his boat some two months ago and drowned was found lying on the beach about four miles below here. An inquest held.

A VALUABLE HOUSE.—Down on Chloride Flat says the White Pine News of April 24th there is a miner's cabin built out of chunks or pieces of high grade chloride ore estimated at $2,000 a ton. The house is sixteen feet square, and the rock in its walls if crushed would perhaps yield in the neighborhood of $75,000. The miners who own and occupy this valuable building of course are doing so temporarily and will have the ore of which it is constructed hauled away [illegible] when [illegible] mills are started in the district. Never before in the history of mining we venture to say did miners [illegible] such a valuable structure as this.

THE RAILROAD TERMINUS.—By the arrival of the steamer Oriflamme it will be positively known where the Railroad Terminus of the Sound will be established and [illegible] of men equal to that of the [illegible] Pacific Railroad will be employed [illegible]. The Depot without further delay will be established at the well known house of KOHN & FISHEL No. 9 Front street where the finest best and most stylish Clothing, Gents Furnishing Goods and Dry Goods can always be had at such low prices that their [illegible] cannot be pleased.

HOAGLAND'S NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive
Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.
Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. B. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.
It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.
It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

THE WEST.

In Monterey county, California, there is an Indian who is 128 years old. He is the "oldest inhabitant" on the Pacific slope.

In the lumber yard of the Union Pacific Railroad at Omaha, are about four and a half million feet of lumber. The shops located there employ seven hundred and sixty eight men.

The Tacoma Mill Company will have their saw mill running in four or five weeks. The wharf at the same place is progressing rapidly. Eight new buildings are going up at present and more will be commenced as soon as lumber can be had. The steamer Tacoma will be ready to run in about two months.

The Alaska Herald, which is pretty well posted on the seal question, in a recent number offers the following suggestion: "If the Government prohibits seal killing with fire-arms, we recommend arrows as good weapons for this purpose. They have been used by some of the oldest Aleutian hunters, who consider this method an excellent one."

The bullion product of the mines about Virginia City, for the quarter ending April 1st, was $2,040,885; total dividends for the same period, $588,000; total assessments, $156,200. The above figures show an excess of dividends, over assessments, of $431,800, which sum represents the aggrate profits of the Virginia and Gold Hill mines for the first quarter of the present year.

A lady named Woolworth, while traveling on the Central Pacific in company with her husband, gave birth to a female child at Montella Station, Nevada. The other passengers on the train contributed the sum of twenty five dollars to purchase a silver cup for the young lady, on which is to be engraved: "Montella Woolworth, born April 19, 1869, at Montella, Nevada, on route westward. Presented by her fellow passengers."

Neutrality and Cuba.

[From S. F. Bulletin.]

We are saving our consistency by a mere technicality. If reports are true, munitions of war, men, and even armed ships, have left American ports within a few weeks to succor the revolution in Cuba; although legal proof of this may not exist, we have not acknowledged the rebels as belligerents, it is true, but we have gone to the other extreme, and utterly ignored the fact that there is any revolution at all. And yet, this revolution is one one of the most palpable facts of the times. A large part of the inhabitants of Cuba are in arms against what is held to be the lawfully constituted government. Now, if England had issued no proclamation of neutrality, and had wholly ignored the late rebellion so far as official action was concerned, her citizens in the meantime selling to the rebels armed ships and munitions of war, it would not have mitigated the offence much in our eyes to hear the excuse, "The English Government knows nothing of these matters, it don't even know that there is a rebellion. Our citizens sell ships, guns, powder, etc, to American citizens, because there is no law to prohibit such sales."

Are we to-day doing the very thing which forms the gravamen of the charge brought against England? Are we assisting rebels to overthrow the Government of Spain in Cuba? It is quite possible that it ought to be overthrown. And so England might have reasoned about what ought to be done in behalf of the Confederacy. Probably a majority of the people of the United States would like to see the Cubans achieve their independence. Our sympathies are on that side. At one time, a majority of the English people would have been glad to see the Southern Confederacy succeed. To make that success more certain, England did under color of a neutrality proclamation what we are doing without any proclamation. It is convenient for the Government not to know that there is a belligerent party in Cuba, which is possibly on the eve of success. And so it happens that ships depart, men enlist, munitions are collected; and while every officer of the Government knows what is going on, it is convenient for the Government not to know anything officially about the matter.

Mexico has taken different ground. She has acknowledged the revolutionary party as belligerents, and has not taken pains to issue any proclamation of neutrality. She hates Spanish dominion and is not slow in letting it be known that she will permit the rebels to have a base for operations in her ports. If Spain was now in the days of her strength, she would make lively times in Mexico, and would ask our Goverment some unpleasant questions.

Now, we are pushing the Alabama claims, and have just made a presentation of them with all the force of statesmanship and all the arts of state craft. The case is a strong one. Are we to weaken the moral force of this claim by inflicting the same wrongs upon another nation that are the grounds of complaint against England. The old maxim that he who asks equity must do equity, is good as between nations. We may escape on the technical plea that we know nothing officially of any war, rebellion or revolution in Cuba. And yet special instructions have gone from the State Department to our Consul at Havana, which have reference to the exigencies caused by the rebellion. The danger now is that we shall lose a part of the moral power with which the Alabama claim is backed, by our course in Cuban affairs. We cannot help it that the sympathies of the people are on the side of the revolutionists. It may be that they have right and justice on their side. But for the sake of consistency, we can refrain from doing the very things which when done by England toward us, we have never ceased to call outrages. When John Bull gores our ox it is a serious matter, and we ask for the payment of a round bill of damages, with an acknowledgement that the act was wrong. How is it when our bull gores the Spanish ox?

GOOD TEETH.—Civilization makes sad work with our teeth. Savages are rarely troubled with a defect or an ache in their dental apparatus. It is not hot drinks which destroy them prematurely, not warm food so much as acids too concentrated in vinegar, pickles, etc., which acts directly upon the lime in their composition, and thus crumbles down.

The foundation for sound, firm, white teeth, must be laid early in life by subsisting on food that contains the elements which the teeth must have, or they will be imperfectly formed, feeble in structure and fall early into decay. If wheat flour were never bolted, but eaten with the bran as we find it partially with the Graham bread, then the system would be abundantly provided with the phosphate of lime, the essential ingredient in the formation of the teeth.

Butter contains a good proportion of the phosphate of lime, and hence those who consume much of it furnish from that source a supply for keeping their teeth in sound condition. Children are usually lovers of bread and butter, especially if they are habitually fed on white fine bread. In that they may obtain something for their teeth, but by no means enough. The coarser the food, especially bread, the better for young people. The soundest teeth belong to persons who have not been reared on delicacies. Poor teeth became hereditary, simply because the ancestral stock was deprived, either by a perverted taste or the habit of feasting on rich concentrated diet, of the phosphate of lime which nature provides in the coverings of grain used for food, and in some kinds of flesh on which carnivorous animals live. We cannot have sound teeth unless the stomach has the right materials for their manufacture.

Something about Railroads.

We, on the outside, hear a great deal about ballast [illegible]. Now what is ballast, and why do they call it so? Well, those tons of iron, men, women, cattle and merchandise, which daily go rushing over the rails must rest on a more firmer foundation than the natural soil. So often after the track is laid and the road seems finished to the uninitiated eye, the ties, track and all must be raised again and gravel or broken stone deposited underneath to the depth of from one two feet. This makes a hard, secure foundation, not given to settle, and allowing the rain to drain through those excavations alongside the track. Ballasting on a first-class road is always going on. The essence of railroad safety is a hard and perfectly level track. What if it settle in one place even a couple of inches? There comes bent rail, and when twenty-five tons of engine and many more tons of cars rush over it, there is an unequal strain somewhere. One train passes, and maybe it cracks; the next, it cracks a little more; by and by there is a broken rail, a train off the track, a smash-up, a coroner's jury investigation over your insured remains, and all the other concomitants of railroad life and death. Such is ballast. The London colliers threw their gravel ballast into the Thames. The railroad men found it to be just what they wanted to make road foundations. So they called it ballast, the name answering for one purpose as well as for the other.

Fast running wears out tracks in fast time. On a certain road there was a double up-and-down track on a grade of forty feet to the mile. The up trains ran slow, the down trains ran fast; the down tracks wore out one fourth faster than the up. The outer rail on a curve also wears much faster than the inner one. Passenger locomotives running from twenty-five to forty miles per hour do not wear out as fast as those used in hauling freight trains. Not drawing such heavy loads, the strain upon the boilers and internal machinery of the passenger engine is not so great.

Small freight cars are now being preferred to large ones. They are more easily and cheaply loaded, more conveniently handled at stations, carry more freight in proportion and in case of accident stand smashing better than large ones. The slower freight trains are run, the less wear on the rails. Rails wear out at the joints first. American iron for rails is now preferred to English. Col. Wilmot of the Royal Engineers, in testing the English iron, found none which would bear a strain of 29,000 pounds to the square inch. Maj. Wade, of the United States, got tests averaging from 40,000 to 45,000 lbs., to the square inch. Both were testing metal for ordnance purposes. The American cast iron wheel drove the English wrought iron wheels from the railway of Canada. The English make better roads than we; but our rolling stock, especially the locomotives, is superior.

A rail lasts about five years. The potent causes of its destruction are lamination and splitting. Locomotives hung on imperfect and rigid springs, hammer it to pieces. Steel rails are in England coming into general use. The director of one of the principal Pennsylvania roads remarks that the first railway talent we possess, openly avows that the only salvation of our railway system will be found in the use of steel metal for our rails.

There should be on every mile of railroad 2,400 cross ties. Broken axles and wheels as well as most other accidents to the running machinery occur from the shock occasioned by passing from a full bearing on a cross tie over the vacant space between them. Some railroad men advocate a continuous bearing of timber underneath the rail, doing away with cross ties. One hundred dollars worth of car, rail or locomotive will wear out to the amount of fifteen dollars yearly.

Interesting Incident in the Senate.

The Washington Chronicle, of April 15th, gives the following:

"An incident, that we refer to without infringing the rules of the Senate, added to the dignity and gave a poetic tinge to the proceeding. There was a prospect of the vote on the treaty being postponed for a day, when Mr. Scott, the new Senator from Pennsylvania, rose and called attention to the fact that the 13th of April was the anniversary of the firing upon Fort Sumter, and he suggested whether it would not be appropriate to mark it by the rejection of a treaty made in the interest of a Power, which, from that day down to the fall of Richmond, had done no act that was not either intended to help the rebellion or to refuse justice to those who were fighting against it. He added, too, that such a decision would now be appropriate since the Senate had just confirmed the illustrious scholar, Mr. Motley, as American Minister at London, who would soon go forth to begin his work under these ample and significant instructions, and who, in his great speech before the Historical Society of New York, on the 16th of December, 1868, had, among other memorable sayings, prefigured the destiny of our country in these glowing words:"

"It is of humane progress that I speak to-night. It is of progress that I find a startling result when I survey the spectacle which the America of the present displays. The nation stands on the point toward which other people are moving. It has put itself—or rather destiny has placed it—more immediately than other nations, in subordination to the law governing all bodies political, as inexorably as Kepler's law controls the motion of planets. The law is progress; the result Democracy. Nearly forty years ago, the clear philosophical mind of De Tocqueville was so impressed by this comparatively infant republic, the phenomena of which he had examined with microscopic minuteness and with statesmanlike breadth of vision, that he exhorted his countrymen and Europe in general, to accept the fact that Democracy was the preordained condition of the human race—a condition to which the world was steadily tending—and to seek happiness in conformity to the Divine command, instead of wearing themselves out on futile struggles with the inevitable."

Railroad Activity.

[From the S. F. Bulletin.]

The whole western country has entered on a period of remarkable activity in railroad matters. While this results naturally from the rapid development of the Western States and Territories, which, as they fill up with people, demand cheap and quick communication with the great centres of trade to the eastward, it is immediately due to the construction of the Pacific Railroad and the desire to participate in the immense business that will flow over it ere long. We notice that numerous local roads are proposed or under way in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, that town meetings are called and town subscriptions made to hurry them forward, and that the local papers in these States are full of the subject. Much of this activity is traceable to St Louis, which city is working hard to rival or surpass Chicago, and is likely to equal it soon in the extent and number of its railroad connections. Other towns in Missouri are showing new life. Charlton issues $100,000 in 8 per cent bonds to the Mississippi and Missouri River Railroad and Sedalia aids the Lexington and St Louis Railroad to the amount of $300,000.

A mere enumeration of all the new railroads under way in the Northwest would fill a newspaper column. Suffice it to say that every town of consequence is striving to avail itself of the advantages of cheap and rapid transportation by rail. The system of railway connections is also being improved, charges and transfers are being harmonized and managements consolidated by means of leases.

It is noticeable that most of the new roads aim at connection more or less directly with either the Southern, Central or Northern Pacific Railroad, but especially with the Central, which will be completed in a few days from Sacramento to Omaha. When this road gets in successful operation we shall witness an extension of branch railway operation to the Rocky Mountain tier of States and the Pacific slope. Colorado, Montana, Utah, Idaho, California, Oregon, Washington, and even Arizona, will be the scenes of important enterprises. The opportunities for creating wealth by this means, in these new countries, are as great as they were in the Northwest twenty years ago, and will be as industriously improved in the next twenty years.

"Patent applied for" on an improvement on the tar and feather process. It was first used in a Wisconsin case, and consists in mixing benzine, turpentine and varnish with pure tar, which allows of its being spread on "nice and even." It is said that the "feathers stick beautifully" to it.

VARIETIES.

Encouragement to crime—when a wife asks her husband to "hook" her dress.

Always catch a lady when she faints, but do not rumple her hair; it makes her so "come to" before she is fairly ready.

Mr. Seward is to have a penknife whose handle has a gold star inlaid for each State in the Union. It is a present from a Sheffield cutlery firm.

A horrible reprobate was lately arrested for flogging a woman, and excused himself by saying that he was near sighted, and thought it was his wife.

Some one who claims to know the lack of enterprise of the wealthy men of Cincinnati and St Louis says "the great want of each city is about thirty five first class funerals."

A young editor being reproved by an old lady for kissing her daughter and requesting an "exchange," innocently replied that he had no idea of transcending the "liberties of the press."

The ordinary mode of churning butter in Chili is to put the milk in a skin—usually a dog's skin—tie it on a donkey, mount a boy on him, with rowels to his spurs about the length of the animal's ears, and then run him four mile heats.

One of the Philadelphia papers sold 95,000 copies of the edition containing an account of the suicide of Twitchell and the hanging of Eaton, and the demand for a morning journal of that city was so great that it was reprinted on the following morning.

Another leaf of history must be written. Socrates did not drink hemlock, or if he did it did not kill him. It is proved that hemlock is no poison. Experiments with it show that only the slightest effects follow very large doses of the pure juice of hemlock leaves.

As a schoolmaster was employed the other day in Scotland in his "delightful task" of teaching a sharp urchin to cipher on the slate, the precocious pupil put the following question to his instructor: "Where dis a' the figures gang till when they're rubbed out?"

A new device of two or three New York papers for making political enemies uncomfortable is prefixing "Mister," spelled in full, [illegible] their names. "Mister Grant" [illegible] to be the favorite object of this cruel malice, and the tears he will shed over the persecution ought to put the hard-hearted editors to shame.

On the night before his execution, a French criminal sent for a physician and remarked that he was greatly troubled by the state of his health. The doctor examined him and prescribed for him, and the medicine was taken as gravely as though the sick man expected to live for years.

The Chicago papers are getting alarmed at the prospect of the Philadelphia Quakers running the Indian machine. One of them says: "Whenever you see a man with a shad-bellied coat and a broad-brimmed hat, spot him. Nine times out of ten he will be nothing but an 'Indian ring' in disguise."
